

Caitlin Boyle

2020 String Adjudicator

A Hamilton based violin and viola performer and pedagogue, Dr. Caitlin Boyle currently holds a one-year position as Viola Lecturer at the University of Western Ontario, as well as being a member of the Isabel String Quartet, quartet-in-residence at Queen's University. She has toured and performed extensively across North America and Europe as violist of the Cecilia String Quartet, a position she held from 2006-2018. In 2015 she received her Doctorate from the University of Toronto, where she researched non-verbal communication in string quartet performance.

Dr. Boyle's passion for music education has led her to teach at the Faculty of Music at the University of Toronto, Mooredale Youth Orchestras, Cardinal Carter Academy for the Arts, Taylor Academy at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Festival of the Sound Music Scores Program, Toronto District School Board, Central Okanagan School District, in addition to teaching students across the US, Spain, UK, Italy, and the UAE. She also co-founded Xenia Concerts, events tailored for and welcoming of families living with autism.

She has performed with orchestras such as the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, the Munich Symphony Orchestra, and the Schleswig-Holstein Orchestral Academy, and now holds positions with Sinfonia Toronto and the Niagara Symphony Orchestra. Dr. Boyle plays on 2002 viola made by Joseph Curtin.
